

Call for Papers: Mining Health and Safety Conference

Submissions open until Wednesday, January 22, 2025

Themed 'The foundation of mining safety,' the 27th annual Mining Health and Safety Conference will be held in Sudbury from April 30 to May 1, 2025.

This hybrid event expects to welcome more than 200 in-person attendees, and 100+ online viewers. Mining industry professionals attend for the opportunity to network, learn and share their knowledge of health and safety.

Workplace Safety North invites proposals for papers for its technical sessions held on Thursday, May 1, 2025. Presentations will be a maximum of 30 minutes, including time for participant questions.

Areas of focus for mining related presentations:

- High-risk hazard management
- Safety culture
- Health and Safety Leadership
- Effective approaches to improving physical and/or psychological health and safety at the workplace
- Industry case studies
- Research and innovation
- Emergency response

Please note, presentations that focus on the health and safety topics above will receive priority consideration over sales-oriented submissions.

If you are interested in presenting a paper at the Mining Health and Safety Conference, please complete the 'Call for Papers' form by Wednesday, January 22.

Call for Papers form

For more information, contact:

Technical sessions

Philip Dirige

Senior Specialist, Ground Control
705-670-5707 ext. 336

philipdirige@workplacesafetynorth.ca

Conference inquiries

Paige Jones

Events Specialist
705-690-2842

paigejones@workplacesafetynorth.ca